

Ira Tannenbaum
Director of Public/Private Initiatives
New York City Office of Emergency Management (OEM)

Mr. Tannenbaum is responsible for designing and implementing programs to maximize the coordination of corporate and municipal emergency management measures and resources within New York City. Ira serves as the primary NYC OEM liaison and relationship manager for senior business continuity professionals, security directors, facility managers, and an array of business sector groups. Ira also served as a Preparedness Specialist with OEM's Health & Medical Planning and Preparedness Division. In this capacity he has been involved in the preparedness programs for terrorism response as well as projects focused on improving the coordination and response of the health and medical systems to major events that may affect the City. Prior to joining OEM, Ira was a consultant with PricewaterhouseCoopers/Mellon Financial Services. He has been an active EMT in a local volunteer ambulance service for the past 14 years, and served as an adjunct professor of Emergency Management at CUNY's John Jay College of Criminal Justice. Ira has a Masters of Business Administration with a focus in Healthcare Administration from the Zicklin School of Business of Baruch College and a Bachelors degree in Biology from Yeshiva University.
